NEW SURGERY IS THE IDEAL TONIC

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

TOTTENHAM Hale residents have been given a tonic after it was announced a new doctor's surgery is to open as a remedy for a severe shortage of GPs' practices in the area.

It is the culmination of months of lobbying by Haringey Council and the borough's health service providers and health watchdog to persuade the NHS to fund a new practice.

It follows a study by Healthwatch Haringey earlier this year showing that GP provision in the east of the borough, especially Tottenham Hale, was overstretched because there was an insufficient number of practices for the population.

A delegation of residents had raised the issue with the borough's health and well-being board – the body on which the council's adult and children services and the director of public health sit, along with the NHS Clinical Commissioning Group and Healthwatch Haringey.

It put pressure on NHS England to set up a group tasked with coming up with a solution.

The practice is scheduled to open next year, with more than 1,800 registered patients.

Peter Morton, the council's cabinet member for health and well-being, said: "This announcement is great news for Tottenham Hale residents.

"I'm delighted the NHS has agreed with us on the merits of funding this new practice and I praise the hard work of all those in the task and finish group who have helped to make this happen."

Mike Wilson, director of Haringey Healthwatch, said he was pleased that there had been a "positive outcome" and thanked residents' associations for their "tireless efforts" in highlighting the problems of access to a GP in the Tottenham Hale area.

Delighted: Councillor Peter Morton, cabinet member for health and well-being

Traders put on a brave front following makeover

A SIGHTSEEING tour has been held in Tottenham of brightly-coloured, funky-styled new shop fronts which traders had a hand in creating.

The walkabout took in High Road, Tottenham, and West Green Road, where 25 shopkeepers have worked closely with architects to give a makeover to the drab frontages of their premises.

The £90,000 scheme has been funded by the Greater London Authority and shop owners.

Residents were consulted on the designs in special workshops to ensure they fitted in with the area's character.

The spruce-up is a key part of Haringey Council's regeneration work to make the area more welcoming for shoppers.

"These fantastic designs mean some of Tottenham's favourite independent businesses are looking better than ever," explained Alan Strickland, the council's cabinet member for housing and regeneration.

Stroll on: Haringey Council organised a guided walk to show off shop front improvements in High Road, Tottenham, and West Green Road

Two killed in industrial explosion

TWO men from Wood Green were killed following an explosion at an industrial unit in Hoddesdon, Hertfordshire, on Saturday afternoon.

The victims, one aged in his 30s and the other in his 40s, have not been named by police. They died in hospital from injuries they received in the blast.

A third victim, in his 20s, was taken to hospital and has been discharged.

Hertfordshire police have arrested a 40-year-old man on suspicion of manslaughter by gross negligence.

Taking pride in their recovery

VICTIMS of drug and alcohol abuse told inspiring stories of how they beat their addiction and turned their lives around at an event last week celebrating their courage and determination in Haringey.

Those in recovery, together with those who have succeeded in kicking their habit, attended an awards evening.

More than 400 people gathered at the Cypriot Centre, in Earlam Grove, Wood Green, for the borough's fourth annual Recovery Pride Awards.

The event was organised by Haringey Council's Recovery Champions team, with partners including St Mungo's Broadway, Haringey Advisory Group on Alcohol, Barnet, Enfield and Haringey Mental Health Trust and support organisation Bringing Unity Back into the Community.

Awards were presented to people who have completed or begun recovery programmes.

Tribute to troops

A FASCINATING exhibition opens in Haringey today recording the contribution of black soldiers in the British Army in World War I.

It's part of the Black History Month events taking place across the borough throughout October celebrating black heritage and culture and featuring films, plays, exhibitions, lectures and presentations.

The exhibition at Bruce Castle Museum, in Lordship Lane, Tottenham, deals with the previously unexplored and hidden history of black and Asian soldiers who served in the Middlesex Regiment.

It is open from 1pm to 5pm from Wednesday to Sunday and runs until March next year.

Digital move prompts fears of museum cutbacks

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

CAMPAIGNERS fear council plans for a radical overhaul of Enfield archives and museum will lead to job losses and cuts to services.

The council is running a consultation over the future of the collection and campaigners say the museum, based at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield Town, could lose its accreditation status and become ineligible for Heritage Lottery Fund grants.

According to council figures, the local studies centre attracted 2,761 visitors last year, as well as 1,528 telephone and email enquiries.

Enfield Council is proposing to scan the archives and reduce access to the collection to appointment only "to help us better manage public demand and create capacity to focus on the digitisation of local study resources".

Plans to create an online archive "will be an exciting and user-friendly online tool", says the local authority.

It is also proposed to move all the museum exhibition space from the ground floor to the first floor, which currently houses the permanent displays.

The Enfield Society's chairman Dave Cockle has written to its 2,000 members about concerns.

He said: "Though presented as 'more efficient and cost effective' and 'increasing access to the heritage resources', these are really cuts in the services provided."

Mr Cockle said the proposal to scan items to make them available all the time was "misleading".

He said: "It would take many years and millions of pounds to scan all the centre's resources."

He told society members: "The form asks you whether digitisation of the resources would be of benefit to you, but it seems that the only possible answer is 'Don't know' because nobody knows what few resources might be available or when."

He said the moves were likely to lead to significant job cuts from the current five.

Former councillor Ingrid Cranfield contributed items to a World War 1 exhibition at the museum and has set up a petition about the proposals online at www.change.org/p/enfield-councillors-save-enfield-museum-and-archives

She said: "Once the archives are not accessible any more and once the museum is moved upstairs, there's no bringing it back."

"The cost of the current service is actually very low. It is nothing compared with the loss of amenities. Digitising would cost millions and would take forever."

"There is no substitute for physical contact with the items in the archives."

The consultation deadline is scheduled for Sunday, October 18.

Concerned: Ingrid Cranfield, front, has set up an online petition in a bid to block the plans for Enfield's archives and museum service

Woman found dead in tower block flat named

THE woman who was found dead in a flat in a tower block in Bush Hill Park three weeks ago was named by police yesterday.

Hamdi Jiumale, 25, of Linnet Close, Edmonton, was discovered by London Ambulance Service medics in Gainsborough House, on the Ayley Croft estate, just after 9pm on September 17.

She was pronounced dead at the scene. Police believe she was beaten to death. The cause of death was given as multiple injuries.

Walid Ibrahim, 34, of Church Street, Edmonton, and two women – Kiinse Aidid, 21, of East Ham, east London, and Macdalena Agathine, 21, of no fixed address – appeared at Highbury Corner Magistrates' Court on September 23 charged with murder, and are due to appear at the Old Bailey on December 11 for a plea and case management hearing.

Three men, aged 25, 26 and 30, have been released on police bail pending further inquiries to a date in early November.

School visitor:
Nathan Sykes at
Oasis Academy
Enfield last week

Stay passionate, singer tells musical youth

A 22-YEAR-OLD singer songwriter who performed in one of the borough's schools last week urged young people to stay passionate about making music.

Nathan Sykes, who was in boyband The Wanted until their split in 2014, played at Oasis Academy Enfield, in Mollison Avenue, Enfield Lock.

The Prince's Trust ambassador urged those with a passion for music to keep it alive during their schooldays particularly if they have ambitions to pursue a career in show business.

Asked if he felt it was important to tell young people to have qualifications in the bag in case their ambitions do not work out, he said: "I wouldn't say you need it as a fallback, but the skills that school teaches you are needed in the business. The music industry is a lot of hard work and education really helps with the job.

"English literature helps me with lyric writing. Business studies helps with knowing about being self-employed or starting your own business.

"All you learn at school – even just about how to concentrate and work hard – can be used in your life as a musician."

Nathan describes himself as a passionate advocate for music education in schools and used his appearance in Enfield to urge young people not to be embarrassed to embrace their passions.

He told the Advertiser: "You can be a bit nervous about what your friends think about your song or your drama performance, but I think it is so important to encourage young people to get creative and that is where fantastic music teachers come in who are passionate about the subjects they teach."

The singer, whose debut solo venture Kiss Me Quick was released in July and reached number one in the US dance club songs chart, was impressed by the Oasis pupils.

"It is me and my guitarist up there and it was fantastic to see how involved the students were," he added. "I got to do a question and answer session after the performance and it was great how interested all the kids were."

EastEnders Anita opens up school's new shop

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A SCHOOL for youngsters with special educational needs has opened a pop-up shop in the heart of Enfield.

The shop was launched in Enfield Town marketplace last week by West Lea School, a specialist sports college for children aged from four to 19, in Haselbury Road, Edmonton, with the help of actress Anita Dobson.

Students from the school will be upcycling some of the goods that are donated to the shop.

Headteacher Sue Tripp said: "I am delighted that we are able to open this new shop, which will have the same aims and objectives as the first, which was opened in Edmonton Green shopping centre in 2012, but will facilitate a much-needed expansion in work experience places that provide wonderful opportunities for our young people."

The 2012 venture was designed as a way for students at West Lea to gain work experience opportunities as well as raising money for the school.

Julian Halford, community and enterprise manager for the school, explained: "West Lea in the Green has had such an impact on our pupils, other schools in the area and the local community. I remember one of our first pupils who was, at the time, very introverted.

Guest of honour: Anita Dobson at the shop's opening in Enfield Town

"By his second week of work experience in the shop, he had come out of his shell and was trying his best to communicate. He still works with us at the shop and we are so pleased with his continued progress and success."

The latest venture was officially opened on Wednesday by the former EastEnders star, who became a patron of the school when she and her husband Queen guitarist Brian May presented two minibuses to West Lea on behalf of the Variety Club of Great Britain.

Ayfer Orhan, Enfield Council's cabinet member for education and children's services, said: "West Lea School is a shining example of success – demonstrating that young people can succeed whatever their ability."

"It is always at the forefront of school activities, whether it is in sports, arts or academic studies, and this latest enterprise is a great addition to the bustling Enfield Town. We wish them every success and encourage local shoppers to support it."

Phil and his band to revive glam rock days

DIG out your platformed boots, dust off your flares, grab the glitter and relive the glam rock era which produced David Bowie and contemporaries such as Slade, T. Rex, The Sweet and Mud, among others.

The 1970s gave us unforgettable fashion and memorable music – and Phil Murray and his band Diamond Dogz will revive those memories when they play the Black Barn on Saturday evening in the picturesque surroundings of Forty Hall estate, in Forty Hill, Enfield.

Every second Saturday in the month the live music venue in a converted barn stages a concert showcasing established and up-and-coming bands.

Featuring early Bowie songs from his Ziggy Stardust days as well as other glam rock classics, the latest offering is a pure slice of nostalgia.

For Phil, now aged 67, tottering about on stage in knee-length boots and glam rock gear, may not be the most dignified of looks, but capturing the music and the fashion of the time is what it's all about.

As a frontman with New Wave 1970s' band U-boat, which he formed with Woody Woodmansey, Bowie's drummer in The Spiders From Mars, he had success supporting The Clash and The Damned.

"There seems to be a renewed interest in glam rock," he says.

"For all the flamboyant costumes

Forty Hall date: Diamond Dogz, with Phil Murray

and make-up, the songs are some of the best ever written and the show captures the contribution of Bowie and fellow glam rock acts of the period," he adds.

Tickets cost £5 and there is a support act. Doors open 7pm and music starts 8pm.

THE annual autumn fun day hosted by Chickenshed was boosted by glorious sunshine.

Attractions included a fancy dress competition on the theme of Stories and Myths and performances by the cast of this autumn's Tales From the Shed show.

The Chickenshed Youth Band and Community Choir entertained the crowds at the theatre, in Chase Side, Southgate, during the event on Sunday.

The more energetic took part in a 3km run through Bramley sports ground.

There was also a toddler rush for fledgling athletes and children could have fun trying out zorbing or getting their faces painted.

The fun day helps raise the £3.5million needed to run the inclusive theatre every year.

 If you can relate to any of the following questions then it is a sign your denture needs attention:

DO YOU FIND YOUR DENTURES:

- Do not fit as well on your gums as they used to?
- Are they loose?
- Do not cut food as well as they used to?
- Do they make your face look older?
- Have discoloured despite meticulous cleaning or
- Cause discomfort/pain on chewing?

If any of the above breeds familiar territory then I may be able to alleviate some of these problems for you.

My name is Caroline Persaud I am a qualified CLINICAL DENTAL TECHNICIAN. Many of you may be aware of Dental Technicians/Mechanics who repair and produce dentures for dentists, however, due to recent changes in the Dental law, a group of Dental Care Professionals known as Clinical Dental Technicians have been approved by the General Dental Council and can now see denture wearers who have no natural teeth remaining, directly without having to visit a dentist.

Shop owner hits out at town centre plans

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A BUSINESS owner has spoken out against the council's latest plans to manage the borough's town centres.

After it was announced earlier this year that the local authority would no longer be funding the Enfield Businesses and Retailers Association and would instead be setting up an in-house operation to manage town centres, businesses have been waiting to hear what the new plans would involve.

At a meeting in the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield, on Monday night, Alan Sitkin, cabinet member for business and regeneration, outlined the introduction of a system which will "cut out the intermediary" to allow businesses to contact the council directly through a dedicated website portal as well as through social media.

Speaking to the Advertiser, Mr Sitkin said the new system came about after cuts to the local government grant had left the authority unable to fund EBRA.

"With the new website portal and direct email accounts, business owners can come straight to us without any need for an intermediary," he said.

"Town centres are a very different place to ten years ago. Everyone has an email address now days. People are much more IT literate, so there is not the same need for face-to-face contact."

Speaking out: Erdal Mehmet

However, Erdal Mehmet, who owns jewellers G Mantella, in Church Street, Enfield, said that it was this very loss which businesses would feel most keenly.

"I am disappointed for the people who were employed by EBRA because they lost their jobs and also because this new system means we lose the personal touch," he said.

"With EBRA there was always someone in between you and the council, which we liked."

Mr Mehmet said the potential conflict of interest with the council representing its own interests while trying to accommodate the business community worried him.

"The biggest concern for me at the moment are the proposals for Cycle Enfield, which will see cars banned from passing along Church Street," he said. "Is the council really going to listen to our concerns if it is simultaneously trying to push the plans through?"

But Mr Sitkin insisted there was no conflict of interest.

"We are duty bound to represent all of our constituents and the business community are important constituents, but equally so are the vulnerable, the elderly, residents – everyone," he added.

Former MP takes charge of Tory mayor campaign

FORMER MP Nick de Bois is at the helm of the Conservatives' bid to get Zac Goldsmith elected as the next Mayor of London.

Mr de Bois was the Conservative MP for Enfield North until he lost out to Labour's Joan Ryan in May.

He is now chairman of Mr Goldsmith's campaign to follow Boris Johnson as mayor in the 2016 election.

"Although people say there is this 'doughnut effect' in London with Labour voters concentrated in the inner boroughs, we have seen in the past few years how London has changed and any mayor has to represent the whole of the capital – not like for instance Ken Livingstone who was known as a zone one mayor," Mr de Bois told the Advertiser.

Mr de Bois also believes Mr Goldsmith, the current MP for Richmond, can overcome any problems sparked by a decline in the Conservative government's popularity between now and the mayoral election next May.

"Of course, he can," Mr de Bois said. "Look at his record over the third runway at Heathrow airport – he opposes the government backing of that. Look at his attempts to impose tougher rules around recalling MPs who have abused their positions. That is why he was selected with 70 per cent of the vote."

Mr Goldsmith, a descendant of the prominent banking family, will be facing Labour's Sadiq Khan in the mayoral election – a battle which will pitch the Eton-educated MP against the bus driver's son who grew up on a council estate.

"To use the logic that people need to have gone through something themselves to understand it is a flawed argument," added Mr de Bois. "People who campaign for disability rights do not need to have a disability to see that currently accessing public transport is a nightmare for those with a disability in London."

"Any MP who works with a London constituency will see a raft of issues every day. Even in Richmond an MP would see cases where people are struggling with housing issues, battling extradition and all range of things, so to say he does not understand specific issues because he has not gone through them himself is a flawed argument."

Traders look to the future following market's relaunch

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

WITH tables groaning under the weight of huge wheels of cheese, golden brown loaves and patisserie which would make even Bake Off's Paul Hollywood smile, Enfield Town Market has been transformed into a foodie heaven.

At Thursday's relaunch in the marketplace in Enfield Town, new stallholders selling fresh fish, flowers, fruit and veg, bread and sweets stood side-by-side with the stalwarts under the new canopy of white gazebos.

"People have said it is as if Borough market has come to Enfield," Gordon Smith, the chairman of the Old Enfield Charitable Trust, which runs the market, told the Advertiser as curious shoppers milled around the charcuterie and olive stalls.

"We have a fabulous range of stallholders here and I am hugely impressed with all their offerings."

There has been a market on the site in front of the St Andrew's churchyard for 700 years – and the trust decided on a revamp after it had failed to produce a profit for the first time ever last year.

A particular concern of the trust's was the lack of a seated area for shoppers to sit down and enjoy cooked food.

Mr Smith said that he was particularly happy with the new food court at the heart of the market, boasting heated gazebos and picnic tables surrounded by Italian, Chinese and Indian food stalls.

Mark Rudling, the town centre manager for Enfield Business and Retailers Association, said the arrival of the new-look market was a boon for the town's prosperity.

The shop vacancy rate in the town currently stands at 20 per cent and Mr Rudling thinks that an upgraded market could help attract shoppers back into the area.

"The Old Enfield Charitable Trust have done a fantastic job," he said. "The market plays a vital role in the fabric of the town's life and makes it distinct from other town centres."

"Enfield Town is a market town at its heart and this returns to that identity. It is what makes Enfield unique and it is absolutely brilliant."

Impressed: Gordon Smith, the chairman of the Old Enfield Charitable Trust, which runs the 700-year-old market

Man taken to hospital after street stabbing

A MAN was stabbed by a group of teenagers after refusing to hand over his mobile phone.

The 21-year-old was walking down High Street, Ponders End, at about 10pm on Thursday when he was set on by a group of five or six teenagers aged between 15 and 16.

The teens demanded that the man handed over his mobile and threatened him with a knife.

When he did not produce his phone, the attackers surrounded him and pinned him to a wall before he was stabbed twice in the hip.

He was taken by ambulance to an east London hospital for treatment. His injuries are not thought to be life-threatening.

No arrests have been made in connection with the attack and police are continuing to carry out inquiries.

Anyone with information about the attack is being asked to call Enfield CID on 101 or contact Crimestoppers anonymously, citing reference number CR5221045/2015.

Tailbacks after car ploughs into pub

A MAN was taken to hospital after a car careered into a pub in Fore Street, Edmonton, on Friday.

Police and the London Ambulance Service were called to The Phoenix, on the corner of Fore Street and Claremont Street, at about 2.30pm.

One man was taken to the Royal Free Hospital, in Hampstead with non-life threatening injuries.

Police closed the road for part of the afternoon, causing long tailbacks along Fore Street.

Aftermath: The Phoenix in Fore Street, Edmonton

Cycle campaigners strike back as war of words heats up

Mini-Holland supporters leaflet businesses

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS keen to usher in an age of cycle safety have launched a fightback against the business lobby group which wants to shut down Enfield Council's Cycle Enfield plans.

After weeks which have seen Save Our Green Lanes posters plastered across shop fronts in Palmers Green and a huge leaflet and postcard drop throughout the area, some residents have launched a mission to dispel some of the myths they say have sprung up around the proposals to transform Palmers Green into a safe cycling and pedestrian zone.

Adrian Lachlan, the London Cycling Campaign's Enfield co-ordinator, told the Advertiser that after the series of meetings organised by Enfield Southgate MP David Burrowes, at which the overwhelming atmosphere was one of resistance to the plans, a group of residents had launched a call to arms to battle in favour of the plans.

"The We Support Enfield Mini-Holland Facebook group now has 179 members and last week some residents who support having space for cyclists went directly into shops in Palmers Green High Street with our own leaflets," said Mr Lachlan.

"We have been talking to shopkeepers in Palmers Green and as a result a number of shopkeepers have taken down the Save Our Green Lanes posters."

Mr Lachlan added that Darren Johnson, the Green Party London Assembly member, who chairs the environment committee at City Hall, was due to cycle along Green Lanes last night to see for himself some of the danger points.

The Guardian featured the battle for Green Lanes in the newspaper on Monday when Andrew Gilligan, the Mayor of London's cycling tsar, was quoted as saying that if Enfield did not want the £30million it had received Transport for London would be happy to allocate to another outer London borough.

"That is worrying," said Mr Lachlan. "I have no doubt that boroughs like Walthamstow would jump at the chance for another £30m to improve their cycling infrastructure further."

"It is a scary thought that money which will be spent on making the grey and unloved parks of Green Lanes better might be taken away from us because of the particularly vocal opposition of a few people."

However, Helen Osman, who is one of the coordinators of the Save Our Green Lanes campaign, says that without ample on-street parking, the area will die.

She said: "Some of the shops in the area quizzed every one of their customers about how they had arrived and they found that almost 90 per cent arrived by car."

The Cycle Enfield consultation for Green Lanes closes on Friday and can be accessed via: <http://cycleenfield.co.uk/consultation/a105-scheme-consultation/>

Cloudy2Clear Windows – Service With A Smile!

It's been a crazy few months for Cloudy2Clear Windows. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has grown rapidly as homeowners take advantage of their services.

Managing Director Richard Power feels that it's all about service. "Our product is simple. If your double glazing is misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 10 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Many tradespeople have struggled since last year and I honestly feel that during the good times a minority perhaps didn't focus on customer care as much as they should have done.

We make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle. I often get comments back from customers on how they really didn't expect that sort of service which, in a way, is very sad for the service industry as a whole."

Cloudy2Clear service the Enfield, Edmonton, Palmers Green, Winchmore Hill & Southgate areas and Richard is finding that his approach is a major factor in his success. "The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated."

So, if your windows are steamed up, broken or damaged give Richard a call for a free quotation on 0800 61 21 118 and he'll be happy to help!

Life president – Enfield Over-50s Forum

DAVID Cameron's pledge that everyone will have access to a doctor from 8am to 8pm seven days a week by 2020 is running into trouble. Evening and weekend appointments have been scrapped already in almost half of the pilot schemes because not enough patients were turning up.

Enfield NHS Clinical Commissioning Group has been turned down twice when trying to get its hands on some of the Prime Minister's £100million fund financing the scheme.

Now a select group of GPs behind private company Enfield Healthcare Alliance – representing about half our surgeries – are going to be paid £612,000 for a six-month, out-of-normal-hours pilot service to be operated at just two sites in the borough.

Irrespective of where they live, patients allocated one of 15,000 appointments available before March 31, 2016, will have to travel to either 808 Green Lanes or Edmonton Green.

This strikes me as a sticking plaster solution to the problem in getting a GP appointment. What we surely need are more doctors, larger surgeries and a guarantee to be seen in our own surgery in say 48 hours.

When I asked our CCG bosses how many surgeries were currently under-staffed, how many GPs will retire shortly and what they were doing to recruit the 84 GPs the Royal College of GPs says we need, the answer revealed little urgency. We deserve more permanent solutions to the looming NHS crisis.

This is about supporting hard-working people

I WRITE as an active union member (I have been my workplace representative for many years).

Ibrahim Dogus is mistaken in suggesting the government hates trade unions and wishes to abolish them "This attack on unions is totally unjustifiable, Advertiser, September 30).

The government instead wishes to support hard-working people who are frequently inconvenienced by a minority of union members voting to strike.

In London we have all been affected by Tube, bus and train strikes that cause significant inconvenience to millions who are either unable to get to work or experience lengthy and difficult journeys. The government has consulted on the following principles to:

- Ensure that strike action only ever takes place on the basis of clear and representative mandates – surely it is reasonable to expect at least 50 per cent of the balloted membership to vote for a strike for it to be lawful?

- Improve transparency and oversight of trade unions, so that we all understand the process that results in strike action.

- Require reasonable notice of strike action and give employers greater chance to prepare for industrial action and put in place contingency plans, helping us all to arrange access to work and make alternative child care arrangements.

Unions do have an important role in our democracy, but a minority in any union should not be able to mandate all members to strike and cause massive disruption to the general public.

It seems nobody cares about Winchmore Hill

WHY is Enfield Council refusing to listen to the vast majority of the people of Winchmore Hill?

Every month, a huge amount of money is taken from our bank accounts to pay for the privilege of living in a lovely part of Enfield. However, it appears we have absolutely no say in how our hard-earned money is spent.

I was born in the borough and have lived in Winchmore Hill since I was a baby. I have seen many changes in that time. I feel so angry and frustrated that no one at the council seems to care about what the residents really want regarding both the destruction of the Green Dragon pub and the proposed cycle lane.

Both of these will destroy the small businesses which are at the centre of our community and replace it with a faceless place with nowhere for people to meet. I know many people in the area, yet I don't know one person who agrees with either proposal.

I suppose we shouldn't be surprised as many senior council officers making these decisions live outside the borough. To them it is only a (well paid) job, to us it is a life and community they seem hell-bent on destroying.

I have attended public meetings, completed the consultation and submitted my comments regarding the Green Dragon. However, I know in my heart that no one will take any notice of my views. Can anyone please tell me how we can make them listen?

Eve McClean

A full assessment is required

IT is good news that an economic risk assessment is planned to be undertaken on the Cycle Enfield proposals now under active consultation.

Numerous examples of implemented cycle-friendly schemes have been shown to result in positive benefit to retailers, but each locality is different.

In Enfield's case some clearly see disadvantages with the apparent loss of parking spaces while others see benefit in increased trade from a more relaxed, less car-stressed place.

Data can assist in reducing the raw emotion evident in such arguments. The economic aspects of planning are one of three core strands that are covered, in cases necessarily in law, as a key element of any evidence base. The other two are environmental and social aspects. Together these three provide a sustainability assessment, there to help ensure any plan delivers an appropriate balance.

Many issues can be interlinked. For example, any benefit to an individual retailer from increased parking may be countered by wider NHS costs from (general) linked air pollution and/or (individual) lethargy.

I would very much encourage a full spectrum assessment covering all three standard analytical aspects is now followed rather than seeking to work with only one leg of a tripod.

We can bank on task force

I'M delighted to see that a new task force has been set up by British banks working with charities and consumer groups to help people facing problems with their finances.

The British Bankers' Association has set up the Financial Services Vulnerability Taskforce, headed by Joanna Elson, from the Money Advice Trust, to help firms identify vulnerable people and then provide support services with the right degree of empathy.

For many people, talking about money can be difficult and unsolved problems can lead to numerous difficulties, even losing your home.

The banking industry has faced a lot of criticism over the past few years and I am pleased to see that it is taking such proactive steps to ensure customers are treated better.

Justice behind closed doors

NUMBER 70 Fleet Street is a nondescript, glass-fronted building.

The only sign on it says, "CCTV in operation".

There is nothing to indicate that inside is one of the most powerful bodies in Europe – the London Court of International Arbitration.

This a private body set up by the City of London to settle commercial contract disputes, with lawyers acting as judges.

Proceedings are in secret and there is no right of appeal.

Government often deals with companies using a "model contract" drawn up by the Cabinet Office.

This contains a clause stipulating that disagreements should be settled by the LCIA.

One wonders why the government does not trust its own judicial system!

Can this be right? Perhaps a load of questions should be asked in many places about this.

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

Parents' pride in lifesaver Michael

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

A YOUNG man from Enfield who gave the gift of life through organ donation has been honoured posthumously.

Michael Bovell, 22, died after he was hit by a train in Brimsdown in April 2014, since when his organs have been used to transform the lives of two kidney patients.

His parents Kelvin and Patsy attended the Order of St John Award for Organ Donation ceremony on Monday, run in conjunction with the NHS Blood and Transplant organisation.

Mr Bovell said: "Michael was the very definition of the word love. Everybody loved him, not just his family. He was totally selfless and spent his life helping other people. We knew he wanted his organs donated because he said he'd donate every single part of his body to help others."

He added: "I'm just happy that he was able to give life to other people. That was just Michael."

His family set up a foundation in Michael's memory to offer support to teenagers and young adults in crisis.

The Mycool Bovell Foundation uses his nickname Mycool and works with the King's House - London's Alive Church, in Pegamoid Road, Edmonton.

Mr Bovell said: "Michael wanted to help other people."

Michael went to Brimsdown

Primary School, in Green Street, and Albany School, in Bell Lane, before joining his father's business as a tiler.

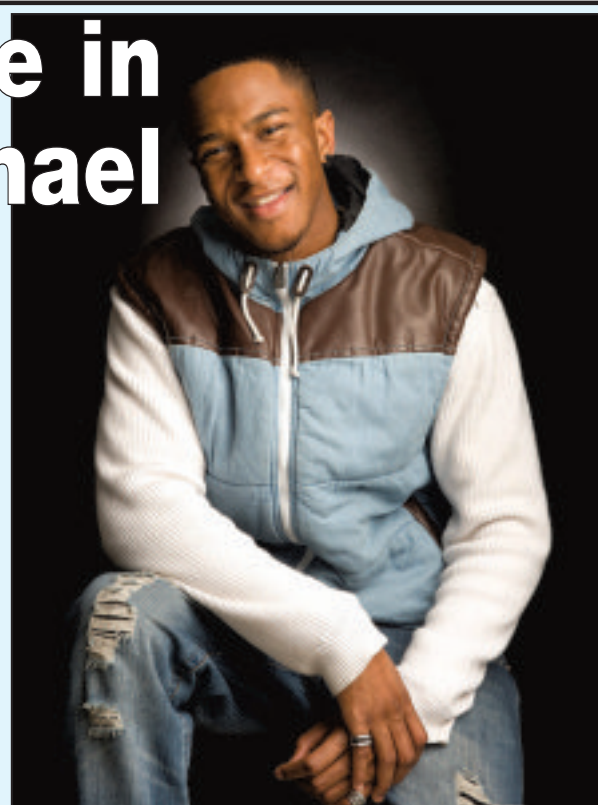

Michael's parents were presented with the special award - inscribed with the words, "Add life, give hope" - by Stephen Foakes, who is a member of the Order of St John and a Deputy Lieutenant of London, at the ceremony at the Priory Church of the Order of St John, in Clerkenwell.

Mr Bovell, of Goldsdown Close, Brimsdown, hopes his son's story will inspire other people from black, Asian and minority ethnic groups to register as organ donors.

They are more likely to need an organ transplant than the rest of the population because they are more susceptible to illnesses including diabetes, kidney disease, some viral infections and heart disease which can lead to organ failure, according to NHS Blood and Transplant.

The service matches organs by blood group and tissue type and the best matches lead to the best results. However, fewer people from black, Asian and minority ethnic groups sign up as organ donors.

Sally Johnson, the director of organ donation and transplantation at NHS Blood and Transplant, said: "It never ceases to amaze me just how humble people are when you speak to them about having helped to save the lives of patients who were desperately ill."

Always helping others: Michael Bovell, who died in 2014

"I have never spoken to a single person who has ever regretted their decision to donate."

Representative Deputy Lieutenant for Enfield Ann Cable was particularly moved by Michael's story. She said: "Organ donation can clearly save lives and it is also vitally important to say thank you to the families whose loved ones have already donated their organs to assist others."

"With around three people dying every day due to the shortage of organs, these donors and their families have carried out an inspirational act to help others to live."

"We hope the example they have set will encourage many more to follow in their footsteps and agree to become an organ donor."

Police officers get lifesaving awards

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

QUICK-THINKING police officers have been honoured with awards for saving the lives of two men who had suffered heart attacks.

Constables Bernie Egan and Robin Palmer received Royal Humane Society awards for saving the life of a young man who suffered a cardiac arrest after collapsing at the Enfield Islamic Centre, in High Street, Ponders End.

They were asked for help by London Ambulance Service and were met by mosque leaders, who took them to the main prayer area where the man had collapsed on January 24 last year.

The two officers took it in turns to administer lifesaving cardiopulmonary resuscitation breaths and chest compressions for 15 minutes before an ambulance crew arrived and took over.

Paramedics used a defibrillator to administer a shock and the young man responded and showed signs of recovery, the award citation said.

He was taken to the London Chest Hospital, in Bethnal Green, for specialist treatment.

Enfield borough commander Jane Johnson said: "There is no doubt that the immediate action taken by Pcs Palmer and Egan provided essential lifesaving treatment. They demonstrated total professionalism in sensitive circumstances."

Pc Scott Read was also presented with an award from the Royal Humane Society by Metropolitan Police Commissioner Sir Bernard Hogan-Howe.

Pc Read witnessed an accident in Hertford Road, in Enfield, when a car was in collision with a traffic island after the driver suffered a heart attack.

Pc Read and his colleague Pc Chi Truong

Honoured: Pc Bernie Egan collects his award from Metropolitan Police Commissioner Sir Bernard Hogan-Howe

found the man slumped in his seat with his foot pushed fully down on the accelerator after the accident on August 22 2013.

The two officers removed the unconscious man from the car, discovered he was not breathing and had no trace of a pulse.

They carried out chest compressions and Pc Truong opened the man's airways and administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

The man stopped breathing several times as he was taken by ambulance to the London Chest Hospital and Pc Truong, who was travelling with him, resumed CPR at the request of the paramedics.

Ms Johnson said: "This was a very difficult incident to manage, with the officers rendering first aid to this man while also dealing with the hazards involved in managing a road traffic accident on a relatively busy road during rush hour."

Pupils over the Moon

United Nations envoy pays a visit to his old school

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

SHUTTLE diplomacy meant a visit to his former Enfield school for a globe-trotting United Nations envoy.

Diplomat Richard Moon, who left Chace Community school, in Churchbury Road in the 1970s, returned last week to talk with politics students about global issues and international relations.

On a stopover on his way back from Africa to the UN headquarters in New York, he chaired a session with Year 13 students.

His visit was part of a scheme run by education charity Future First, which harnesses the talents of former pupils of state-run schools and colleges to inspire and motivate current students.

The charity's 100,000 registered alumni act as career and education role models, mentors, work experience providers, governors, fundraisers and donors. and they work in more than 400 state schools and colleges across Britain.

"I had a wonderful and slightly emotional experience going back to Chace," said Mr Moon.

"We had a very intensive Q and A experience covering widely diverging issues of UK, US, UN and world politics.

"I loved every second. I would have been happy to conduct a week-long politics seminar to tell these lovely young people everything I have learned over the past 40 years," he added.

The school's assistant headteacher Mark Quinn said the students were especially excited to hear Mr Moon talk about the UN role in Africa.

"That work is directly relevant to their A level course," he explained.

They were interested, too, he said, in his views on Syria and ISIS "particularly given that their homework had been to prepare a conference on the issue".

"The most important thing was that they got to meet someone who started out in life just like them and has achieved so much in his career," added Mr Quinn.

Get qualified with the Adult Learning Academy

Certificates, Certificates and more Certificates, seems to be what many employers are shouting for today.

Years ago, experience would suffice but today employers and the government are looking for qualifications in almost anything i.e. even making coffee for the public you need a Food Hygiene Certificate!

That's how it is. One may say it is a good thing to have many certificates and others feel it's just too much.

Whatever the argument, we have to meet the requirements and regulations in order to do what is needed from us.

Right? Hence, one of the reasons, The Adult Learning Academy was set up in 2010 was to do just that for adults. To basically provide courses that would meet government regulations and employer requirements.

These courses include Childcare L3, Security Guarding, English and Maths, First Aid, Teacher Training, Childminding, Teaching Assistant, Assessing, Management, Health & Social Care, Apprenticeships, CV Writing and GCSEs etc.

Most courses run either during school time 10-3pm or in the evenings and is accredited by well-known Awarding bodies such as City & Guilds and EDEXCEL.

If you would like to find out more about getting qualified in a particular course, feel free to call one of our advisors on 020 8804 4114 or visit our website www.alacademy.co.uk

Bush Hill Park a welcoming and successful school

Bush Hill Park is a large, vibrant, welcoming and successful Primary School with around 660 pupils from Nursery to Year 6.

We have established a culture of high expectations of achievement and believe in providing all children with skills for lifelong learning through engaging them in a rich, challenging curriculum within a shared culture of safety and respect.

We are committed to early reading and mathematics through Read, Write, Inc and Maths Mastery, combined with this we have created a stimulating outdoor provision that encourages discovery, awe and wonder.

At Bush Hill Park Primary School, families share in their child's learning and successes. We believe that working together in a strong partnership is the best way to ensure a child's success.

We expect our children to grow into successful and responsible young people who make a positive contribution to their school and wider community.

Bush Hill Park School has undergone some rapid changes, this has provided a new focus for the school's inspiring leadership team.

We have been fortunate enough to attract a high calibre of dedicated teachers and specialist staff.

We are a happy school and work in an atmosphere of respect and trust, where each child feels secure and cared for and has a sense of belonging.

During their time at Bush Hill Park Primary School children will be introduced to a wide variety of learning experiences and curriculum enrichment opportunities.

We have great children who are keen to learn and an excellent team of staff who go the extra mile and are innovative and supportive with the children at the heart of everything that they do.

We work hard to ensure that we support our children to become independent, motivated, confident individuals who aim to be the best that they can be!

"Freedom to flourish"

At Palmers Green High School we are celebrating 110 years of educating girls, challenging them to aim for the stars whilst enjoying our happy family atmosphere. As headmistress at PGHS since 2002 I look forward to welcoming back alumnae from the different generations as they share their memories, present experiences and future plans. The school motto, 'By Love, Serve One Another' was carefully chosen by our founder, Miss Alice Hum, and it still epitomises our special ethos where each individual is nurtured, successes are celebrated and contribution to the community is greatly valued.

Lower School classes benefit hugely from the encouragement and expertise of their class teachers and teaching assistants. Favourable teaching group sizes, light and airy classrooms and access to senior school facilities all lead to an inspirational learning environment. This is enriched by specialist teaching in Art, Design & Technology, Drama, French, German, Latin, Music, PE and Russian - frequently in half class groups.

In Senior School small class sizes (an average of only 10 at GCSE) and a broad range of extra-curricular activities enriches the girls' experience. New year 7s enjoy a three-day residential PGL trip and friendships are formed quickly and easily. Excellent teamwork helped our Year 10 pupils to win the 2014 London Schools Hydrogen Challenge, in a world record-breaking time. In 2015 GCSE candidates attainment at A*/A was 77.2%, placing them amongst the top performers in the country.

Ranked 1st in the Sunday Times league table for Small Schools for the past five years, parents can be reassured that Palmers Green High School girls not only attain excellent results in relation to their abilities and aptitudes, but also grow in confidence and poise as members of this very special school community. Here a plethora of opportunities ensures that our girls have freedom to flourish.

Cautious response to new deal on business rates

Celebrations on hold: Alan Sitkin

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

COUNCIL chiefs have given a lukewarm reception to the announcement that local authorities can keep business rates they generate within their own boroughs rather than returning to them to a central pot.

In his speech at the Conservative Party conference in Manchester in Monday, Chancellor of the Exchequer George Osborne said that local authorities would be getting new devolved powers enabling them to decide how to spend the revenue raised from business rates. They will also be given the power to lower rates to attract new business.

However, Enfield Council's business and regeneration chief Alan Sitkin said he was treating the news cautiously.

"The devil is in the detail," he said. "Under this government we have seen the amount of money the council can use on a discretionary basis fall from £191million to £90m. We have been burned by this government before."

He added that while the council would be able to retain the money generated in Enfield, some parts of the capital could lose out as there would no longer be any redistribution of business rate income generated by the City of London and Canary Wharf.

"Before we can celebrate I need to see the detail of what caveats are attached and we need to look more closely at what compensatory mechanism will be deployed to stop some boroughs with a high rate of non-occupied businesses from losing out," said Mr Sitkin.

Oaky-dokey: Cliff Raven and the headstone

Woodcarver Cliff creates a fitting headstone for artist

By Julia Gregory
julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

AN interest in local history led keen woodcarver Cliff Raven to create a headstone for an Edmonton-based artist who was buried in a pauper's grave.

Mr Raven investigated the story of Henry Charles Heffer, who was born in Lambeth, in south London, and spent the last 30 years of his life at 61

Sebastopol Road. He discovered that Mr Heffer, who died aged 83 in 1931, was buried in a grave without a headstone in Edmonton cemetery, in Church Street.

He said: "I'm a member of the Enfield Woodcarving Club, which meets at Chace School, in Churchbury Road, Enfield, so I decided to make a more fitting memorial for his headstone."

The oak headstone has been treated with a varnish to make it weatherproof and the cemetery authorities have given Mr Raven permission to position it on the headstone.

Mr Raven has been a member of the woodcarving club since 1967 after joining an evening class led by Victor Bukovskis at Enfield Evening Institute at Kingsmead School, in Southbury Road, Enfield. He lives in Haselbury Road, Edmonton, and first became interested in Mr Heffer after he spotted a painting of his on the internet.

He discovered that the artist studied at Thanet House Academy, in Margate, Kent, before moving to Wimbeldon, in south London, and then to Enfield, with his third wife Elizabeth Laura.

The artist's works are in the collection at Croydon Museum and at Vestry House Museum, in Walthamstow, east London.

Mr Raven added: "He lived in various addresses in Enfield. He lived in Ponders End initially for about a year and then came to Edmonton, where he lived in Denton Road and Chamberlain Road before moving to Sebastopol Road, and painted Edmonton scenes. He sold pictures in America and his wife and two daughters assisted him."

Records at Enfield Local Studies Library revealed that Mrs Heffer gave music lessons from the family home in Sebastopol Road before her death in 1937. Further details about Enfield Woodcarving Club are available from 020 8360 4924.

Win tickets for a family affair

THE Family Travel Show is the UK's first ever event totally dedicated to family travel adventures – and we have five pairs of tickets to give away.

Family holidays are precious memories in the making and a chance to spend that all important quality time together. Whether you're looking to embark on a chilled family beach break, an all-inclusive exciting cruise holiday or something a little more adventurous, from skiing in Austria, to wildlife safaris in South Africa or a culture-driven holiday in Asia, there will be something to suit all the family.

The Family Travel Show is being staged at Olympia from October 31 to November 1 and will give the chance to get face-to-face with the best family holiday providers and specialist operators all under one roof, take advantage of exclusive show-only offers and competitions, gather impartial advice and inspiration and, of course, quiz the experts on those all-important questions.

So, if you're looking to just research, plan or book your ideal family adventure, you can do all this and more at The Family Travel Show. For more show information, visit www.familytravelshow.com. For your chance to win tickets, just answer this simple question:

■ Where is The Family Travel Show taking place – a) Olympia b) NEC c) Manchester Central?

Send your answer, with your name, address and a daytime telephone number, to: Family Travel Competition, North London & Herts Newspapers, 187 Baker Street, Enfield, EN1 3JT, or send your answer, with contact details, to competitions@nlhnews.co.uk, with "Family Travel" in the subject line, by noon on Thursday, October 15.

READER'S TICKET OFFER: We are also offering reduced price advance tickets to the show. Get your tickets for only £6 (that's saving £6 off the door price) by quoting "NLHNEWS" when booking tickets online at www.familytravelshow.com or when calling 0844 209 7360 – calls cost 10p per minute, plus network extras.

Ann's voyage from Doris Karloff to dancing queen

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

ANN Widdecombe's public approval rating has never been higher since the once fearsome former Conservative minister quit the Commons and remarkably ended up the nation's sweetheart as a celebrity contestant on Strictly Come Dancing.

People get to see another side to the brusque, no-nonsense, bossy, combative character we've all come to know and love when she shares with the audience amusing tales about her amazing life at Wylyotts Theatre, in Darkes Lane, Potters Bar, on Tuesday night.

Billed as an evening of dynamic words, opinions and anecdotes from a lady who is a "tour de force of nature", her strident views are certain to have some fidgeting uncomfortably in their seats.

However, who can forget the 67-year-old, cruelly labelled Doris Karloff because of her frumpy appearance during her parliamentary days, dolled up to the nines in make-up, sequins and high heels as she partnered Anton du Beke on BBC 1's Strictly.

Five years have elapsed since then, but the image of her flying around the stage dangling from wires or her unintentionally hilarious paso doble, performed to a soundtrack of Wild Thing by The Troggs and described as a "car crash" by the judges, is seared into the public's consciousness.

She talks about that as well as some of her more recent escapades, including in pantomime with her nemesis, Strictly judge Craig Revel Horwood, plus other notable stage and TV appearances such as presenting Have I Got News For You and in opera at Covent Garden.

She is also a highly-regarded author, having published several novels.

But it is her high-profile political career, spanning 23 years and serving as the minister of prisons in John Major's government and as shadow health secretary and shadow home secretary under William Hague, which provides a rich vein of fascinating and amusing tales.

And after the sparkling repartee, Ann will answer questions from the audience and be available for personal book signings.

Remarkable transformation: Ann Widdecombe

Blunt stays at the sharp end

SICARIO (15, 121 mins)

FRENCH-Canadian filmmaker Denis Villeneuve made an impressive English language debut in 2013 with the nihilistic thriller Prisoners.

Before he takes charge of the sequel to Blade Runner, the talented director dazzles with this edge-of-seat assault on unbitten nails, glimpsing America's war on drugs through the eyes of a ballys FBI agent, who is naive about the full extent of her government's covert activities.

Sicario, which translates as hitman in Spanish, is tautly paced and expertly scripted by Taylor Sheridan, who sidesteps glib solutions to a complex global epidemic.

Instead, he skilfully weaves together sinewy subplots involving morally flawed characters on both sides of the Mexican border, building up a richly detailed picture of the blurred lines between authorities and the traffickers.

Desperation drips like rivulets of sweat from every expertly crafted frame and Villeneuve heightens our discomfort with thrillingly orchestrated action set pieces including a mesmerising finale that exposes sins under the cover of darkness using night vision and thermal imaging cameras.

At the blackened heart of the film is a tour-de-force performance from British actress Emily Blunt, whose steely-nerved heroine might have to sacrifice more than her idealism in the crucible of machismo and political double-dealing.

She plays Kate Macer, part of the FBI's Special Weapons and Tactics team, at the forefront of the war against drugs on American soil.

Flanked by her partner Reggie Wayne

(Daniel Kaluuya), Kate storms a safe house and uncovers dozens of rotting corpses.

Soon after, a government agent named Matt Graver (Josh Brolin) asks Kate to join his top-secret task force, which intends to cripple the cartel fronted by Rafael (Raoul Trujillo) from the top down.

Haunted by the loss of men under her command, Kate willingly signs up and she heads to El Paso for her briefing, where she learns that she will be venturing on to Mexican soil.

"What's our objective?" asks Kate.

"To dramatically overreact," tartly replies Matt.

A Colombian former prosecutor (Benicio Del Toro) with a personal vendetta joins the task force.

Bullets fly and Kate's conscience is spattered in blood as she witnesses first hand shocking brutality in violation of the laws she vowed to uphold.

Sicario gradually tightens the screws on frayed nerves, reaching a crescendo with the extraction of an informant from Ciudad Juarez.

"Keep an eye out for the state police. They're not always the good guys," one of the characters tells Kate, stoking her paranoia and ours.

Blunt is terrific in a physically and emotionally demanding role, clashing with Brolin's cold and pragmatic leader, who believes the means always justify an end that is favourable to US interests.

Johann Johannsson's atmospheric soundtrack pants and growls like a caged beast, creating a furious tempo that Villeneuve matches with flourishes of directorial brio.

NEW HOMES

Houses come in all shapes and sizes, large, detached, small terraced cottages, modern townhouses etc. The same is true for development sites, we have been asked to appraise acres of green field, large and small commercial buildings and estates and at the other end of the spectrum - strips of land between two end-of-terrace houses - and just about everything in between! In our experience it is better to be safe than sorry and not to under-sell or even miss the opportunity to benefit from developable land that you may own.

Whether you have a large garden, a strip of land to the side of your property or you own - commercial property that isn't performing as well as it used to, now is the time to investigate its development potential. Planning policy is changing and local authorities have housing targets to meet. You may be able to contribute to solving the housing shortage whether it is one house or twenty or more houses and gain financially from it!

Lanes specialist Land & New Homes Department can provide detailed development appraisals and advise on all things development, from inception to completion.

For an initial, confidential chat please contact Simon Cox at Lanes Land on 01992 526754 or simon.cox@lanesnewhomes.co.uk.

ACCURATE VALUATIONS IN ENFIELD

The main factors that affect the price achieved for your home are likely to be size, location and fittings. However, there are innumerable other variations that can add significant value.

Valuing properties in West Enfield is not like valuing properties elsewhere. There are thousands of different styles and in some roads every other property is quite different to the next. The knowledge to appreciate these differences can only be built up over time.

At Ian Gibbs, our valuers have built up that knowledge with over 35 years of valuing properties in the EN1/EN2 area and that experience heightens the chance of you realising the full potential of your greatest financial asset.

A car that's very easy to love

By Matt Kimberley

HERE is a future piece of British automotive history. It's the first time an Ian Callum-designed Jaguar has replaced an Ian Callum-designed Jaguar and it marks the next step for the car that brought about the most significant brand revolution of modern times.

It's a few millimetres shorter than before, but the wheelbase of the new aluminium construction is longer. This gives more space for passengers to enjoy the high-spec new cabin and, of course, the signature Jaguar rotating air vents.

Jaguar isn't going to win any prizes for originality, having largely just transplanted the family face from the XJ and XE straight on to the new car.

It's sweetly proportioned and carries its bulk very well – a neat trick to pull when you can balance size and grace, and the XF does it better than any of its rivals.

In dear old Britain, we're going to be biased on the image front. It's a British car built on these shores and, of course, we want to love it.

The thing is, the product makes itself very easy to love, regardless of where you're from.

An extra 27mm of headroom for rear passengers could be much appreciated by some owners, despite the roof's peak point resting 3mm lower than the old XF's. A 540-litre boot with a wider aperture is a winner, beating each of the German rivals.

The obvious black mark against the XF is that the interior materials are too nice. They are so nice that even taking a coffee into it is taking a risk, so if your kids always seem to find a way of making liquid messes, think twice or invest in a very good upholstery cleaner.

Buy the 3.0-litre diesel. It's absolutely immense, pulling like a train at the slightest tickle of the throttle and recording a laughable 1,300rpm at 70mph for epic long-leggedness (in top gear, 2,000rpm doesn't arrive until 110mph).

Whether you're on the passive standard suspension or the adaptive, adjustable setup, the XF shows mighty composure through corners and rides well on the 20-inch wheels fitted to the test cars.

You can't escape the outright weight, despite the savings versus the outgoing model.

It's too close to call between this and a BMW 535d without a back-to-back drive. Dynamically, the Jag is excellent.

The eco-friendly 2.0-litre diesel is (much) less impressive in terms of performance, but ticks the right boxes for running costs. A 104g/km version is an eye-opener. It's just a shame its stop-start is so comparatively coarse.

Depending on whether your heart really desires it or not, the Jag could look like excellent value.

If you do want one, go for it and you won't regret it. If you're a die-hard BMW, Mercedes or Audi follower, you'll need to get inside to see just how far the Jaguar brand has come.

Prices, on the face of it, are competitive with the best of the rest and that 104g/km version will turn some heads among company car users.

Other than the aforementioned business types, families will get along famously with the XF. At almost five metres long, it's no nimble town car for nipping around with the kids in tow, but it could serve perfectly as the family's "big car".

Jag expects a lot of buyers to switch from other brands and it's not hard to see why once you're in and around it.

The Gazette, Advertiser & Press Group

In print... ...or Online

We'll give you the best of both worlds...every week, all week!

In this rapidly moving technological age people are finding new ways to advertise, especially online via the internet. But contrary to what online sites are saying and common assumptions, print advertising is not dead. There are still benefits and disadvantages to both methods and the best way to succeed is to find a vehicle that covers both bases - and that's where we come in!

The Benefits of print advertising:

1. Print adverts last longer and will be seen often.
2. They will be seen by a large number of people and have the ability to hit a specific audience.
3. There is a more creative potential with print advertising.
4. There is a positive perception of newspaper advertising - it will encourage people to think the client is serious.

The Benefits of online advertising:

1. The advert content can be easily updated.
2. It's online 24/7, 12 months a year, all round the world.
3. A massive audience, with all ages now online.
4. Very quick response - you can be receiving candidates hours after posting your advert.

The Advertiser series of newspapers is distributed every week and the latest editions can be found on our website at

Head Teacher – Andrea Cassius

Class Teacher Required January 2016

We have an unexpected opportunity for someone special to join our wonderful school.

We are a 'Good School' (Ofsted, Nov 2012) on the journey to becoming outstanding.

Teachers at our school are 'enthusiastic and clearly enjoy their teaching. This sets a shining example for pupils which motivates and encourages them to always do their best.'

This is an exciting time to be joining our school as we build and shape it for the future. With high expectations of all children and the ability to set 'a shining example' you will be, or have the potential to become, an excellent practitioner.

The successful candidate will be:

- An innovative and creative classroom practitioner with a drive and a passion to ensure that all children achieve
- Able to work as part of a team, sharing excellent practice and learning from others
- Committed to working in partnership with parents and have excellent interpersonal skills
- Able to offer the school something 'special'.

The school will offer you:

- Children that will amaze you and make you laugh
- A wonderful and stimulating learning environment
- A supportive and inspirational staff team
- Opportunities to develop strengths and try something new
- A family first ethos.

We are very proud of our school and would recommend a visit. Please arrange this by calling the office and speaking to Chris Butler (or email cbutler@suffolks.enfield.sch.uk).

Actual Salary Range: MPS 1-6

Application form, job description and person specification can be downloaded from our School Website www.suffolks.enfield.sch.uk (Info, vacancies section). Completed application forms should be returned to Christine Butler, School Business Manager.

CV's will not be accepted.

Closing Date: Friday 16th October 2015, 9am

From Great to Amazing

St Ignatius College is a Jesuit school in identity and mission, for boys 11-18

School Business Manager

to start as soon as possible

Salary Range: SM4 (£51,963 - £54,651)

St Ignatius College is looking for a wonderful person to join our Leadership Team as soon as possible. The College is going through a period of transformation as it looks forward with great positivity and enthusiasm to the future. We believe passionately in investing in our staff and we are looking for an individual to join our team and bring with them the gift of their personality, a positivity and 'can-do' approach which will contribute to our Jesuit sense of purpose and ambition.

The Governing Body is seeking to appoint a highly skilled, professional and experienced School Business Manager to be responsible for all financial management and administrative systems within the school.

The successful applicant will provide strategic and operational leadership, planning and management of the school business and support functions, including financial, facilities, administration, Human Resources and health & safety that contribute to creating the conditions for all students to experience success.

POCHETTINO HAILS ERIKSEN DOUBLE

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

CHRISTIAN ERIKSEN was hailed by head coach Mauricio Pochettino after his fantastic free-kick double helped Tottenham Hotspur to pick up a 2-2 draw from their trip to Swansea City in the Premier League on Sunday.

Spurs dominated for long spells at the Liberty Stadium, but fell behind twice and needed Eriksen's heroics to ensure that they extended their unbeaten run in the league to seven matches.

The 23-year-old Danish international had not previously scored this season following a spell on the sidelines through injury, but he put that right in spectacular fashion over the weekend by curling two free-kicks into the net.

"Christian is a very important player for us," Pochettino said. "If you give him chances to shoot he can have an impact on the game."

"He is one of the best at dead-ball situations, it is hard to say he is the best but he is one of the best. He has natural ability, but he also spends time working on it. They were great free-kicks, he has quality when he shoots and delivers a free-kick."

"We have maybe dropped two points. We are disappointed with the result, but not the performance or effort. We were a bit unlucky, you need luck in football to win the game, and we played better than Swansea."

"We created a lot of chances, completely dominated the game but that's football and we need to accept it. We have to be proud of our players because the effort was brilliant, and to perform like that three days after playing Monaco was fantastic. We're ambitious and want to win all our games and, when we have the opportunities, we need to have more of a killer instinct."

And Eriksen explained his mindset as he was stepping up to take the two free-kicks which ended up in the net.

"For the first one I knew the keeper would either stay where he was or go behind the wall," he said.

"When I went to the ball I saw he took a step to Dead-ball specialist: Christian Eriksen scored with two free-kicks at Swansea his right so I guessed for the far post. I think it was almost in the middle of the goal when it went in, but the keeper went so far behind the wall, luckily for me.

"The second one was a bit wider, a bit more difficult. If it's going to the shorter corner of the goal it has to be really hard, hit with a lot of pace, so I went for the far post again – and luckily it went in.

"I have my rituals and my way of knowing where the ball has to go. I know with the confidence I have that the ball can go well, and if it hits the target then it's either a save or a goal, so I'm going for it.

"It was an open game with lots of chances and we were a bit unlucky. We haven't lost many games, we know we can come back if we're down and we just have to keep playing our football."

Late leveller denies Borough a notable win

HARINGEY BOROUGH came agonisingly close to securing a notable triumph at Folkestone Invicta in the preliminary round of the FA Trophy on Saturday before a late equaliser forced them to settle for a 1-1 draw.

The visitors went into the match as clear underdogs against the Ryman Division One South leaders, but they more than held their own and looked to be on their way to a shock win when Ashley Taylor-Forbes gave them an 84th-minute lead.

But Folkestone were not to be denied and Ian Draycott grabbed the equaliser with just two minutes remaining to set up last night's replay.

The hosts made the brighter start and went close on several occasions, but Borough did have the ball in the net when Daniel Ailey turned in Leroy Griffiths' cross – only for the goal to be ruled out for offside.

Daniel Aristidou was thwarted by Folkestone keeper Scott Chalmers-Stevens and Ailey fired over as the visitors continued to give a good account of themselves, and the first half ended goalless.

The second period proved to be an evenly-contested affair, but Folkestone went close on 72 minutes when Draycott's header was tipped over by visiting keeper Ashley Harris.

Borough visibly grew in confidence as time progressed and Anthony McDonald chipped wide before they broke the deadlock when Hayes Thomas' free-kick was touched in by Taylor-Forbes.

However, the visitors were unable to hold on to their advantage for long as Josh Stanford latched on to Jon Pilbeam's pass and pulled the ball back for Draycott to fire into the net.

Folkestone almost grabbed an undeserved victory in stoppage time, but Harris came to the visitors' rescue by saving Chappell's header at point-blank range to ensure that the tie did go to a replay.

The result saw Borough maintain their improved form, which had continued on Tuesday last week with a 0-0 draw at Harlow Town in Ryman Division One North.

Aristidou and Taylor-Forbes both went close for Borough as they gave a good account of themselves against one of the favourites for the title.

Haringey Borough host Tilbury on Saturday (3pm), before entertaining Harlow Town on Tuesday (7.45pm).

Bishay brothers agree new deals

BROTHERS Michael and Chris Bishay have become the latest players to commit their futures to the London Skolars for the 2016 rugby league season.

The Skolars ended a difficult campaign in Kingstone Press Championship One in a positive fashion by producing some encouraging displays in their last few matches and have wasted little time in re-signing numerous members of the squad.

And winger Chris and pivot Mikey have now joined a number of their team-mates in putting pen to paper on new deals which will see them stay at the club next year.

A statement for the Skolars said: "Mikey left London Broncos in the winter of 2014 for pastures new in Queensland, Australia, but decided to return home early and played with the Skolars from April 2015."

"He has become a crucial player in the first team, driving our attack in the back half of the year and testing opposition fullbacks and wingers with his exquisite kicking game."

"Chris re-signs after a confident first season in rugby league with the Skolars. He came to the club with a wealth of rugby union experience with Wasps. A sevens specialist, he made two appearances in Wasps' first team – scoring tries against Harlequins and London Irish."

"He made his first foray into rugby league on the wing at York, but showed his versatility by also playing at full-back and centre when required throughout the season."

"A strong runner with great handling skills, Chris has a natural rugby understanding and made some great reads in defence throughout the season. With an extensive pre-season behind him there is no doubt that Chris has the skills and rugby nous to push on next year and nail down a regular starting spot."
